

Brian A'Hearn, Carlo Ciccarelli, Francesco Cinnirella, Anna Missi-
aia, Michelangelo Vasta

Presentation of the new section Surveys and De- bates (SD)

(doi: 10.1410/105600)

Rivista di storia economica (ISSN 0393-3415)

Fascicolo 3, dicembre 2022

Ente di afferenza:

()

Copyright © by Società editrice il Mulino, Bologna. Tutti i diritti sono riservati.

Per altre informazioni si veda <https://www.rivisteweb.it>

Licenza d'uso

L'articolo è messo a disposizione dell'utente in licenza per uso esclusivamente privato e personale, senza scopo di lucro e senza fini direttamente o indirettamente commerciali. Salvo quanto espressamente previsto dalla licenza d'uso Rivisteweb, è fatto divieto di riprodurre, trasmettere, distribuire o altrimenti utilizzare l'articolo, per qualsiasi scopo o fine. Tutti i diritti sono riservati.

Presentation of the new section Surveys and Debates (S&D)

BRIAN A'HEARN, CARLO CICCARELLI,
FRANCESCO CINNIRELLA, ANNA MISSIAIA
AND MICHELANGELO VASTA

The Editorial Board of the Rivista di Storia Economica/Italian Review of Economic History (RSE/IREH) is launching a new section in the Rivista dedicated to Surveys and Debates (S&D). We envision articles in the S&D section addressing ongoing debates in economic history, economics, and more generally social science. These may relate to influential articles or books, or break new ground. Particular attention will be given to works dealing with Italian economic history, but contributions focused on other geographical areas are encouraged as well. Articles included in the S&D section need not follow a prescribed format with division into sections but should be short (typically not more than 5,000 words). In any case, they will have a fast and transparent review process.

We are excited to inaugurate this new space in the RSE/IREH with a lively discussion between two internationally renowned scholars: Leandro Prados de La Escosura and Jan Luiten van Zanden. The debate follows the publication of Prados de La Escosura's Human Development and the Path to Freedom: 1870 to the Present (Cambridge, CUP, 2022). This book analyses how human development has evolved in the last 150 years. More than 30 years after the launch of the Human Development Index (HDI) by the United Nations, the authors debate the critical issue of how, and how far, we should go beyond GDP in measuring wellbeing. Prados de la Escosura's book, following this research tradition, represents a further step in the evolution of HDI, by both suggesting some technical modifications to its original formulation and by including «freedom» among the components to be considered. The focus of the two contributions of the debate is on both on the usefulness of aggregating different dimensions into a single, composite Brian A'Hearn: Pembroke College, University of Oxford, OX1 1DW, United Kingdom. Email: brian.ahearn@pmb.ox.ac.uk.

Carlo Ciccarelli: Department of Economics and Finance, Tor Vergata University of Rome, Via Columbia 2, 00133 Roma, Italy. Email: carlo.ciccarelli@uniroma2.it.

Francesco Cinnirella: Department of Economics, University of Bergamo, Via dei Caniana 2, 24127 Bergamo, Italy. Email: francesco.cinnirella@unibg.it.

Anna Missiaia: Unit for Economic History, University of Gothenburg, Viktoriagatan 13, 41125 Gothenburg, Sweden. Email: anna.missiaia@gu.se.

Michelangelo Vasta: Department of Economics and Statistics, University of Siena, Piazza San Francesco 7, 53100 Siena, Italy. Email: vasta@unisi.it.

index, and on the possibility of including other dimensions of well-being – beyond longevity, education and wealth – in measuring economic development in historical perspective. The debate is so rich and intense that we foresee other contributions on the same topic being published in coming issues of the RSE/IREH. We hope that the opening of this S&D section will make the Rivista ever more appealing to our readers.